

The thesis „A pre-school child's quality of life". Focus on a child using the philosophy of education as your point of view based on the timeless testament of J.A.Komenský and thoughts of present specialists who's dealing with child's education within philosophy, pedagogy and psychology. Its aim is to identify the ethical aspect of an adult in a child's education as a factor in the understanding of basic human values. The background theory is dedicated to phenomenon's - home, love and responsibility which are fundamental in providing the natural needs of a child and at the same time reminds us of the importance of the educators character and nursery institution for a child's view on the world. The practical section is a social research study focusing on the educational situation of a pre-school child in a present day family and explores the nursery school environment from the point of view of the teachers. The end of this thesis evaluates the assumptions made and shows important answers in light of a child's quality of life.